No arrests yet in teen killings

Police said today that the investigation in the Tuesday night shooting that fatally wounded brothers Christopher Malcom, 17, and Rohan Bennett, 13, is ongoing. Though the brothers' parents and a family friend describing himself as a "cousin" were being questioned Wednesday regarding both the shooting and a large quantity of money, narcotics and guns found in the home, charges have not yet been filed. Firefighters use strength in numbers to protest City Hall

▶ Rallying cries outside City Hall showed how personal the dispute has gotten.

Thousands of union members from the International Association of Firefighters conference marched down Broad Street and converged on City Hall Thursday afternoon, calling on Mayor Michael Nutter to honor the contract an arbitrator awarded to Philadelphia's Local 22 in early July.

"Right now, we we're feeling we're not getting the respect we deserve," Local 22 President Bill Gault said. "The message is: Honor the contract. Binding is binding."

The union filed a lawsuit against the city July 17 for failing to implement the agreement, the latest in a series of disputes that have eroded the relationship between the Nutter administration and Local 22.

"I've been to this city — which I love — too many times. I've stood on these steps too many times because a mayor wants to shut down a company, because a mayor wants to not honor a binding arbitration award," IAFF President Harold Schaitberger said, noting that in the past, when an arbitrator came back with an agreement that wasn't favorable to Local 22, they lived with it. "I'm going to say to you, Mayor Nutter, it was good enough then and it's good enough now."

The administration already appealed Local 22's award two years ago and an arbitrator returned virtually the same terms. The union, which can't legally strike, has now gone four years without a contract and the administration has used the one opportunity afforded to it by law to appeal.

"We made a lot of decisions this week about how we're going to be spending millions and millions of dollars in the political arena," Schaitberger said, adding that, though many members will soon leave Philadelphia as the conference ends, they will continue to stand behind Local 22 and firefighters in other cities who are facing similar issues — and against the politicians. "We're going to come back with dollars and marbles and chalk and everything it takes to play this game and to win."

"I took an oath, I'm sure as [Nutter] took an oath, to protect citizens from all enemies, foreign and domestic. He's declared firefighters the enemies."

▶ Gault, the union president, said Nutter is ignoring him.

Now it's personal

The union's dispute with the administration has become increasingly personal. Leaders say Nutter has rebuffed their attempts at making nice.

"This is a mayor who has no respect for the people who save lives," Gault said when addressing the crowd. "This is a mayor who's not even in the city right now. He's with a bunch of other mayors plotting how to take your benefits away."

Gault said before the rally that Nutter has neither contacted him since the contract was awarded, nor returned his calls.

"What I find so incredible is the president of our Local, Bill Gault, sent the mayor what I though was a wonderful letter in which he discussed moving into the future, leaving the past behind us and starting a new relationship the day the award arrived," Schaitberger said. "The mayor doesn't have the courtesy to respond."

Time line

- July 1, 2009 — Local 22's contract with the city expired.
- Sept. 17 to Oct. 15, 2010 — The city and Local 22 went to arbitration and a four-year contract was awarded.
- Nov. 12, 2010 — The city appealed, saying the agreement was too costly.
- Nov. 16, 2011 — A Common Pleas Court judge sent the contract back to arbitration.
- July 2, 2012 — An arbitration panel issued a new recommendation with virtually the same terms. The city, which says it can appeal the new recommendation, has until Aug. 2, 2012 to decide.
- July 17, 2012 — Local 22 filed a lawsuit against the city demanding they implement the contract, arguing that the city is compelled under state law to agree to the panel's reconsidered terms. The city allegedly responded with a written threat to punish the union if they continue with the suit.
- July 1, 2013 — Local 22's contract will expire yet again.

Cabbie who pooped on street apologizes

Taxi driver pleads for leniency at PPA hearing, saying excruciating pain caused gross emergency pit stop

All cab driver Domenic Fareri wanted was for the pain to stop and to relieve his bowels. At 5 a.m., in the middle of a shift, that meant hovering over a sidewalk and taking the most uncomfortable squat he's ever taken.

That was part of Fareri's explanation Thursday during a hearing with the Philadelphia Parking Authority to determine whether the 18-year cabbie should lose his taxi operator's license for the gross act that was caught on a homeowner's private surveillance camera on the 1800 block of Bainbridge Street. Since the YouTube video of his indiscretion on July 13 went viral, Fareri has lost his job.

"I'm very sorry. I know it was totally unacceptable. I was in a lot of pain," an embarrassed Fareri testified before a PPA hearing officer. "There was no rest rooms. It was 5 in the morning. There was no place to go. I was in so much pain."

"I'm very sorry. I know it was totally unacceptable. But I was in a lot of pain. There was no rest rooms. It was 5 in the morning."
DOMENIC FARERI

PPA launched an investigation after receiving a civil complaint from the homeowner whose camera caught the whole scene. William Schmid, head of enforcement for PPA's Taxi and Limousine Division, said the former Freedom Taxi driver's license should be revoked because the act was a public safety matter and reflected poorly on other upstanding cab drivers.

"It's totally unacceptable to have a driver defecate in a residential neighborhood — on any highway," testified Schmid, one of two PPA supervisors who spoke during a 20-minute hearing.

Fareri declined to cross-examine either witness. The only time he spoke was to offer his explanation and apology.

"This would never happen under normal circumstances. I apologize to the homeowner," he said.

Fareri's license will remain suspended until a Sept. 11 hearing. He could also face a fine between $350 and $1,000.

▶ Fareri, an 18-year veteran cabbie, stopped briefly July 13 on Bainbridge Street.

Taxi union leader sympathetic, but disappointed

Ron Blount, head of the Taxi Workers Alliance of Pennsylvania, who has faced his own damning accusations in the past, said the PPA's proposed punishment was too harsh. But he wouldn't excuse Fareri's behavior, saying it was something you'd expect from far less experienced drivers.

"More experienced drivers [should] know where the restrooms are. A lot of these new drivers that come in are inexperienced," Blount said. "It's just really no excuse for that. It makes all of us look bad."

Delco official vows to defy voter ID law

A Delaware County election official is vowing not to enforce the state's controversial voter ID law as a court challenge on the law begins.

Christopher Broach Sr., a judge of elections in Colwyn Borough, expressed his opposition to the law in an e-mail Wednesday, according to the Delaware County Daily Times.

"I wanted to publicly acknowledge that as judge of elections in Precinct 1 of Colwyn Borough that I will not comply with the new voting laws as they are unconstitutional," wrote Broach, a Democrat.

Pennsylvania is one of 11 states to pass voter identification laws since 2010, with the commonwealth's being among the strictest. The Republican-backed law has come under scrutiny from Democrats and voting rights groups, which claim the law would disenfranchise the elderly, college students, minorities and low-income residents before the presidential election. Republicans claim the law is necessary to prevent voter fraud.

By the Pennsylvania State Department's own estimate, nearly 800,000 eligible voters do not have photo identification. Voters will be required to show a driver's license or other form of government-issued identification.

A Commonwealth Court judge in Harrisburg heard opening arguments Wednesday in a case of groups who have challenged the law. The judge has said he will issue a ruling in mid-August.

Broach said he will abide by the previous law, which only required identification for those voting for the first time.

The state department said any election official who violates the law could face severe penalties, including a $1,000 fine and imprisonment.

Nonetheless, Broach said he is firmly committed to civil disobedience.

"I'm utterly concerned, but so was Rosa Parks when she decided to sit down on a bus when the law said she shouldn't," he told the Daily Times.

Twtter suffers second outage in five weeks

SAN FRANCISCO. Twitter suffered its second widespread outage in 5 weeks on Thursday, a blow to the micro-blogging service's reputation and reliability.

Twitter — infamous for its "fail whale" outage messages in its early years — went dark for hours on June 21. On Thursday, users trying to log on to its website were greeted only by an incomplete error message: "Twitter is currently down for. We expect to be back in."

Mitt's comments leave a sour taste

CARL COURT/AFP/GETTY IMAGES

▶ U.S. Republican presidential candidate, Mitt Romney, leaves after meeting British Prime Minister, David Cameron, in Downing Street in central London on Thursday.

Republican presidential candidate Mitt Romney's high-profile overseas trip got off to a rocky start on Thursday when he was forced to clarify a comment seen as criticizing London's handling of the Summer Olympics that he came to celebrate.

The Republican candidate ruffled British feathers ahead of his visit by appearing to suggest in a U.S. television interview that London was not ready for the games, whose opening ceremony in the British capital is held on Friday.

"It's hard to know just how well it will turn out. There are a few things that were disconcerting," Romney told NBC when asked to analyze London's handling of the Olympics.

He cited what he said was the threat of a strike by immigration and customs officials. "That obviously is not something which is encouraging."

The comments were seized on by British media and Prime Minister David Cameron defended Britain's handling of the games, after he was forced to deploy extra troops to bolster security to cover a shortfall left by a private contractor.

"We are holding an Olympic Games in one of the busiest, most active, bustling cities anywhere in the world. Of course it is easier if you hold an Olympic Games in the middle of nowhere."

PRIME MINISTER DAVID CAMERON

"We are holding an Olympic Games in one of the busiest, most active, bustling cities anywhere in the world. Of course it is easier if you hold an Olympic Games in the middle of nowhere," Cameron said during a news conference at the Olympic Park in London on Thursday.

The comments, in response to a question about transport problems ahead of the games, could be uncomfortable reading for Romney, who has made much of his record as the man who saved the failing Olympics in Salt Lake City.

London is ready for a party at the 2012 Olympic Summer Games Metro gives you a sneak peak at some of the Opening Ceremony Will Paul McCartney perform? And will Becks be there?

Let the Games begin

▶ Special constable Andrew Codling, who has been working security at the Opening Ceremony rehearsals, snapped this photo of sparks showering down from the Olympic rings during the ceremony.

An estimated 4 billion pairs of eyes will be watching as London becomes the first city in history to host the Olympic Games for the third time. With its prior hosting duties in 1908 and 1948, the city known for its pomp and pageantry is planning a spectacular opener that will likely rival even Beijing's dazzling display in 2008.

London enlisted the guidance of English director Danny Boyle, famous for his film "Slumdog Millionaire," to coordinate a show-stopping Opening Ceremony. Boyle reportedly went through $42 million in his effort to tell the story of Britain's history in an hours-long ceremony that transforms the Olympic stadium into rural England.

Boyle's spectacular, dubbed "Isles of Wonder," has called upon the help of 10,000 volunteers. Details have been tightly under wraps, though it has proven difficult to hide an event of such massive scale from the public. Final rehearsals caught the attention of people near Olympic Village this week.

2012 Opening Ceremonies

Andrew Codling, a special constable — similar to a volunteer policeman — has been helping with Olympic preparations for months and shared some of what he saw.

"The whole performance is stunning with so much going on throughout the whole piece," Codling told Metro.

Team USA, along with every other country's team, will be featured in a parade of Olympians, dressed in the official uniforms of their nations

"I am really excited and really inspired," beach volleyball player and two-time gold medalist Kerri Walsh told Metro on the eve of the Opening Ceremony. "I am going for gold here in London and every day the butterflies get a little bigger."

Opening spoilers

▶ Beckham

When details of Boyle's multimillion dollar ceremony began to leak to the press, the London Organising Committee of the Olympic and Paralympic Games launched the hashtag #savethesurprise to encourage people not to share too much. That hasn't stopped Olympic enthusiasts from spilling a few details, though. Here's what Metro's inside sources say the Opening Ceremony might include:

- Boyle's rural England theme has long been rumored to incorporate live animals. Our snitch tells us there will be sheep, goats and cows.
- London is well-known for its dreary skies, though weather is expected to hold tight for the ceremony. Don't fret — rumor has it the ceremony will include rain-producing synthetic clouds.
- No British spectacle would be complete without the most famous spy of all. Watch closely for an appearance by James Bond in the form of actor Daniel Craig — and he might just be repelling from a helicopter.
- Soccer superstar David Beckham, proud Brit that he is, may be kicking a "flaming" soccer ball into the audience. We're assuming they're not real flames.
- Like everything else about the Opening Ceremony, the musical acts are decisively British. Our sources tell us Sir Paul McCartney and musician Mike Oldfield have both been spotted practicing.

Fencer Zagunis chosen to carry American flag

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Two-time gold medalist Mariel Zagunis

Only one athlete can carry the American flag and lead the 529 members of Team USA through the Opening Ceremony.

This year, that honor goes to fencer Mariel Zagunis of Beaverton, Ore. She earned her position as flagbearer through a vote among her fellow teammates.

Zagunis, 27, is a two-time Olympic champion who won gold at the 2004 Olympics in Athens and again in 2008 in Beijing. Her win in 2004 made her the first U.S. fencer to win an Olympic gold medal in a hundred years. She is the third fencer to carry the American flag during the Opening Ceremony, joining Norman Armitage in 1952 and 1956, as well as Janice Lee Romary in 1968.

SO MONEY CAN'T BUY YOU LOVE ... MAYBE GOLD

- Study shows direct correlation between country's income and athletic success at the Olympic Games
- London may have decided 'home-court advantage'
- Breaking down top apps to enhance experience

For the gold

CASSANDRA GARRRISON
CASSANDRA.GARRISON@METRO.US

Can money buy Olympic medals? Not exactly, but a new study by two Goldman Sachs analysts shows that a country's income can have a significant effect on how their athletes perform and — in turn — how many medals they bring home.

The report, called "The Olympics and Economics" by Jose Ursua and Kamakshya Trivedi, takes a close look at the effect money and income can have on a country's overall success and within specific sports at the games. They took a look at variables including GDP per capita, the ratio of income to that of the U.S., democracy and hosting duties, and then studied those combined effects on winning medals.

It turns out that richer countries — those with "superior growth environments and higher incomes" — can expect to win more medals. The sports that were most influenced by those factors were canoeing, diving, fencing, swimming and table tennis. Equestrianism, gymnastics and wrestling were also influenced by the factors.

Adversely, sports that aren't as expensive to train for, like football, softball and triathlon, were the sports least affected by the factors.

"Progress and improvement in sport," the authors wrote. "This trend — with a few economically significant countries winning a bulk of the Olympic medals on offer — has continued in recent times. For example, less than 10 countries participating in the 2008 Beijing Olympics won more than half of the almost 1,000 gold, silver and bronze medals that were distributed."

$13.3
Billion-dollar budget for 2012 London Olympics, which is actually slightly less than the city had originally anticipated

Additionally, the report proves that "home-court advantage" is a real thing. Countries that are hosting the Olympics tend to bring home more medals than they do when traveling elsewhere for the games, though not in every sport.

"In some cases, hosting the Olympics has meant increasing the number of medals by more than 50 percent, with respect to what countries would have otherwise attained," the report stated.

Historically, hosting countries can expect to win about 1.5 to 3 more medals per game in events like cycling, gymnastics, rowing, sailing, swimming and wrestling. Other sports like football, rhythmic gymnastics and water polo don't find as much benefit from the so-called "home-court advantage."

But when it comes to a financial win for host countries, the results have been mixed. The 1972 Munich Olympics and the 1976 Montreal Olympics both had significant financial losses. However, the 1984 Los Angeles Olympics, the 1992 Barcelona Olympics and the 1996 Atlanta Olympics all turned a profit, per the report.

The researchers note that it is too early to predict whether the London Olympics will be profitable, but the city's infrastructure plans for the Games were finished on schedule and even below budget.

Spice Girls to reunite at London Games

Americans can expect to see one of their favorite British things at this summer's Olympics: the Spice Girls!

Rumor has it Geri Halliwell (Ginger Spice), Emma Bunton (Baby Spice), Melanie Chisholm (Sporty Spice), Melanie Brown (Scary Spice) and Victoria Beckham (Posh Spice) will take the stage at the closing ceremony on Aug. 12.

According to the Hollywood Reporter, the 1990s girl group that just recently reunited are on a lineup that also includes fellow British artists George Michael, The Who, Take That and Jessie J.

One Direction, a British boy band that's enjoying fame in the U.S., is also expected to make an appearance. Comedian Russell Brand may also take the stage in a musical act.

The Spice Girls will likely perform two songs at the ceremony, and one of them is expected to be their number one hit "Wannabe."

Five events you shouldn't miss

You remember Kerri Strug and Usain Bolt 'sprinting to daylight' What events will you remember in '12?

There are always a handful of marquee events at each Olympics which capture the entire country's attention.

Some are easy to predict — like Michael Phelps and the U.S. swimming team's epic 4x100-meter freestyle relay win over France. Some, like the men's volleyball team's gold medal performance weeks after their coach's father-in-law was murdered in Beijing, took the public completely by surprise.

Metro takes a look at some of the bigger events in London and tries to pin down a few you will remember.

MARK OSBORNE
mark.osborne@metro.us

Men's 200m IM

The biggest rivalry of the games could actually come from a pair of teammates — U.S. swimmers Ryan Lochte and Michael Phelps.

The men's 200-meter individual medley will be the showdown between the two unquestioned best all-around swimmers in the world. It's 50 meters each of butterfly, back, breast and freestyle. The two were clear of the field by three seconds at the 2011 World Championships, where Lochte won. But Phelps is the defending gold medalist.

Women's soccer

Abby Wambach, Hope Solo and Alex Morgan burst onto the sports scene last summer during the Women's World Cup. They became media darlings almost overnight.

Just one problem — they didn't win. Japan took the Cup and left the defending Olympic champion Americans feeling hollow. Now they can make up for that and reclaim the glory of Mia Hamm, Julie Foudy and Brandi Chastain. Brazil will be good, but the U.S. would love to get revenge on Japan.

Men's 100-meter

What if I told you Usain Bolt isn't even the fastest man in his own country anymore?

In case you missed it last month, the reigning gold medalist and world record holder lost in the Jamaican Olympic trials to Yohan Blake. And it wasn't particularly close.

Blake won the World Championships last year too, but with the caveat of Bolt having faulted and been disqualified. All of this sets up what could well be the best 100-meter contest since Ben Johnson vs. Carl Lewis in the 1988 games. (Let's hope it doesn't end the same way.)

Speaking of steroids, don't forget American Justin Gatlin, the 2004 gold medalist returning from a drug ban.

Women's all-around

The name to know in women's gymnastics this year is the United States' Jordyn Wieber. She is the reigning all-around World Champion and the one America's hopes rest on. There's no more Shawn Johnson and no more Nastia Liukin, who took this crown in 2008 in a heated competition between her teammate Johnson and China's Yang Yilin.

Remember the incessant age controversy about China's athletes in 2008 that created an intense rivalry? Well, the U.S. would like to win again — and a win in the team all-around would be nice too. Russia's Viktoria Komova could steal gold from Wieber also.

Men's basketball

We don't know if the U.S. men's basketball team will appear in the game, obviously, but there is a good chance. And we're really looking forward to the epic rematch of 2008's gold medal game between them and Spain.

You know the U.S. team's roster — LeBron James, Kobe Bryant, Kevin Durant and a handful of other All-Stars. The one thing they don't have? Size.

That what makes a potential matchup with Spain so intriguing. They have three of the best centers in the league with Pau Gasol, Marc Gasol and Oklahoma City's blocking machine Serge Ibaka. Let's hope it gets physical.

Carl Lewis believes in US track

With 10 Olympic medals, nine of which are gold, American track and field superstar Carl Lewis continues to be the standard for success on the international level.

Lewis, 51, is still involved with the sport as the spokesman for the Hershey Track & Field Games, which introduces the sport to children in elementary and middle schools. Lewis has been a part of the Hershey's program for six years and is hoping to see an Olympian emerge from the event someday.

Lewis said that a meeting with Olympic track and field legend Jesse Owens when he was younger helped spur his involvement with the Hershey games. He spoke to Metro about the 2012 Olympics in London and how the U.S. track team stacks up.

"I think the Americans are going to do better than people think."
CARL LEWIS,
10-TIME OLYMPIC MEDALIST

U.S. sprinter Justin Gatlin won the gold in 2004 then missed the 2008 Olympics due to a doping ban. Does he have a chance to challenge the Jamaican sprinters in the 100-meters?

It's an interesting story, because I think he served his time and he's back and running again. The part of the story that is being missed because of the Jamaicans and the talk about them — [Gatlin] could also be the second person to repeat as the 100-meter champions. Everyone is talking about the Jamaicans, but if Gatlin repeats, he'd be the second person ever to repeat. [Ed. Note: Lewis is the other athlete to do it. He won gold in 1984 and 1988, after Ben Johnson failed a drug test.] No one is talking about that, and he has that on him as well.

There will be a lot of pressure on him for sure.

I don't think the pressure is big to him. He's been through a lot and running very well. I think the Americans are going to do better than people think. I think we've got a great shot at winning the relay if we put the right people on — or more importantly, we leave the right people off because we have trouble with certain people. I think we're going to do better than most people think.

What about the Jamaican sprinters, Usain Bolt and Yohan Blake. Is this a golden generation we're seeing now or has the American program fallen behind?

I'm not following them enough. I'm getting the same question and I follow them as much as the average American. I'm busy with the Hershey games and thing like that.

But wow, you've got all these athletes in a row running great. Time will tell. I always tell people that history defines greatness. I think we will do very well in the Olympics.

Does Bolt need another gold to be truly great?

Here again I go back to anyone who wins the Olympic gold medal is one of the greats. But history defines greatness. We'll see what happens. Eight years ago, people were talking about [U.S. sprinter] Maurice Green and saying he was going to be one of the greatest of all-time. He tried to repeat in 2004 and he ended up in third and you never saw him on the national team again.

▶ Lewis won four gold medals in his first Olympics appearance in Los Angeles in 1984. He took golds in the 100 meters, 200 meters, long jump and 4x100-meter relay.

Q&A

After a positive drug test, U.S. runner Debbie Dunn has had to withdraw from the 4x400-meter relay team. How does that affect the relay team?

I think the United States will win it. It is disheartening as we continue to fight these issues. I think that's the bigger issue. I will admit, I'm glad she has said, 'OK, I will accept my situation,' instead of the game a lot of them continue to play.

But the United States has been so strong in the 4x400 and my favorite athlete in the games is [former Giants and current Jaguars cornerback Aaron Ross's wife] Sanya Richards-Ross, and she is running better than ever and might even set the American record.

THESE ARE THE PEOPLE IN YOUR NEIGHBORHOOD

- Ben Stiller and Vince Vaughn talk about getting the gang back together
- Stiller likes working with people who are funnier than he is
- Vaughn likes throwing his young daughter into the deep end

One of the benefits of doing an ensemble comedy is catching up with old friends. At least, that's how it was on "The Watch" for Ben Stiller and Vince Vaughn, who co-star with Jonah Hill and Richard Ayoade as concerned citizens investigating what turns out to be an alien invasion in their suburban neighborhood. Stiller and Vaughn previously squared off in "Dodgeball," but here they play it a bit chummier. "I love working with these guys. It's great to work with the people who make you laugh and who are funnier," Stiller admits.

Reunions aside, Stiller also enjoyed letting loose in a comedy that didn't have the same restrictions as his more family-friendly fare.

"The fun thing for me is to be a part of a movie where you don't have to worry," Stiller says. "Being in an R-rated film, you can have a lot more freedom."

And that freedom doesn't just mean more violence and cursing, but it extends to how the characters are depicted. These guys aren't forced into experiencing personal growth.

"I don't think it was about having it all sort of tied up in bow. It was more about these guys hanging out and how they affected each other, but it wasn't like about teaching lessons or anything," Stiller says.

Vince Vaughn's character has an argumentative relationship with an unruly teenage daughter trying to grow up too fast. In real life, Vaughn has just welcomed his first daughter. So did the movie give him any premonitions of troubles to come?

"My daughter is just 19, 20 months now," he says. "Thankfully I'm a long, long way from answering any of those questions as far as being protective. But I have encouraged her to get on some scooters, motor scooters, motorized vehicles, that kind of stuff. I threw her in the pool — but she swam, so it's fine."

Of course, he won't pass up an opportunity to joke about potential suitors coming round the house. "That happened the other day, I had a 3-year-old ring the bell. I said it was little bit inappropriate. She's too young to make her own decisions. They have to walk before they fly."

While Stiller, Vaughn and Hill are familiar faces to comedy audiences, the fourth member of their neighborhood watch might not be: British actor and director Richard Ayoade, who directed last year's "Submarine" (executive-produced by Stiller), admits he felt like he stuck out a bit in the cast. "I've never been in a film, not really," Ayoade admits. "My wife said — and she's right — it's going to look like I won a competition to be in a film with movie stars. And there were several days when I was like, 'Why are

'Step Up Revolution'

Starring: Ryan Guzman, Kathryn McCormick
Director: Scott Speer
Grade: ●●○○○

The characters in each of the "Step Up" series's installments have always come second to the dance sequences, meaning that transporting the franchise to Miami and introducing an entirely new cast is essentially as meaningless as the film's flash mob as political activism plot. A local dance crew stages spontaneous routines on the streets in the hopes of winning a viral video challenge worth $100,000. But when a developer threatens to tear down their neighborhood, the tycoon's daughter shows her new friends that their fancy footwork can be used for more than filthy lucre. Once again, the dance sequences are spectacular — and plot and characterization are clearly not the point. But can we please get a movie that offers more than your average music video? METRO

▶ Can do: McClellan pulls this off in her tiny Center City galley kitchen. Visit www.foodinjars.com for more tips and tricks.

Capture summer in your cabinet

◗ Make the most of farmers market finds by stashing some treats for winter ◗ Easy ideas to get you started

It's hard to think of canning in July, when you're still hungover from strawberries and busy licking sticky peach fingers. But Marisa McClellan — the crafty Philly canner behind popular blog Food in Jars and its new spin-off cookbook — urges you to think of the months ahead while you're snacking your way through the farmers market.

"If you're looking to eat more locally and want to eat fruit in January, you have to can," she says.

As we enter the peak of "canning season" — April through October — we checked in with McClellan for a little fresh inspiration.

Peaches

Go ahead and pick too many — McClellan's site is packed with peach recipes. Try a simple peach butter, or dress up traditional canned peaches with a little bourbon or brandy.

Okra

"Okra pickles are a great thing for people who aren't sure about okra — you reduce its slime factor, and it turns into something really crisp and delicious," says McClellan.

Kohlrabi

Poor kohlrabi is famous for being the last one picked during the CSA box draft. But with the help of a mandolin, this little cabbage-like veggie is the perfect jar candidate. "It's a really good one for pickling," says McClellan. "It's super crunchy, and when you toss it with a vinegary liquid it just becomes bright and crisp and all of those things that you want in a pickle."

MONICA WEYMOUTH
monica.weymouth@metro.us

Apricots

"Apricots are one of those fruits that don't taste spectacular plain, but when you cook them into jam, it's spectacular," says McClellan. "Pick up a quart, cook them with a little bit of sugar and you're done."

Whatever you do with jams, don't alter the sugar ratios. "If you see a jam recipe and you think that's too much sugar, you can't change the recipe," she warns. "If you slash the sugar, you end up with syrup. It's not as if you're eating a whole jar of jam in one sitting — or, well, you shouldn't."

Where no DIY artist has gone before

Brittany Holdahl is skipping the Fringe Instead, she's putting her eccentric 'Mayan Chowder' onstage during the no-man's land of summer arts in Philly

Come September, practically every corner of Philadelphia will be overflowing with off-the-wall DIY theater projects as the 2012 Philly Fringe officially gets under way.

But this year, only one upstart playwright is willing to buck the Philly theater scene's seasonal customs. This weekend, Brittany Holdahl will put her work onstage during the most barren month of all on the Philly arts calendar: July.

Holdahl graduated from Temple University's theater program in May and is wasting no time getting her career underway. "Mayan Chowder and Other Tales" is her series of five short, eccentric comedies, including the title piece, which involves an astrophysicist and a can of clam chowder.

If you go

'Mayan Chowder and Other Tales'
Through July 29, Shubin Theatre, 407 Bainbridge St., $10, www.facebook.com/mayanchowder

"Theater in Philadelphia is so saturated during Fringe. We wanted to try something different," says Holdahl, who has performed as an actor in the Philly Fringe for the past two festivals. "But there's a certain benefit to that saturation, too. People are so used to going to these kinds of shows during Fringe season."

Many DIY artists will pay close attention to both the triumphs and pitfalls of this little test case. The Live Arts Festival only charges $300 to join the noncurated Fringe segment of their programming. But for a tiny show like "Chowder," that's about 25 percent of the total production budget.

Director Joseph Nevin and Holdahl originally budgeted about $800, but went above and beyond expectations with an inspired Indiegogo.com campaign. "It's still totally barebones. The set is so minimal. We had to be creative with furniture and theater blocks, and all that good stuff," says Holdahl. "It's still a lot of props and costuming — and hopefully some witty dialogue, if I did my job right."

ANDREW ECCLES/OXYGEN MEDIA

Travis Wall has 'All the Right Moves'

The work of Travis Wall is everywhere. The young dancer is choreographing routines on the current season of Fox's "So You Think You Can Dance"; his moves are featured in the film "Step Up Revolution," hitting theaters Friday; and on Tuesday, his mission to found the dance company Shaping Sound with his friends is documented on the new Oxygen reality series, "All the Right Moves."

The 24-year-old "SYTYCD" veteran — he was the runner-up on the competition's second season — has, undeniably, become a bankable name in the dance world. That notoriety doesn't always sit well with his pals — including Shaping Sound co-founders Nick Lazzarini, winner of the first season of "SYTYCD," and Teddy Forance, who has performed with Lady Gaga and Janet Jackson — which makes Wall's story perfect for a docuseries. Artistry and drama collide every episode.

"When we were getting things kicked off, I definitely took the leadership role," Wall said of his group at the Television Critics Association press tour in Beverly Hills, Calif., on Wednesday. "And through the season, we definitely see control struggles. Our egos are definitely tested."

From Episode 1 there is concern over the shadow Wall's spotlight may cast on his partners, particularly after the suggestion is made to rename the company Travis Wall's Shaping Sound. "That was not the intention of starting this dance company, to throw my name on it," Wall insisted.

Instead, Wall hopes Shaping Sound, whose co-founders were just nominated for an Emmy for their choreography on "Dancing with the Stars," receives even more widespread recognition for their talent.

"Our goal in the entire series is to … tour the United States with our dance company," Wall said. "We can pay our dancers. We can travel the country together, have fun, party, dance and just have the time of our lives."

Kristen Bell and fiance Dax Shepard live next door to Justin Bieber, but they're not exactly enjoying it.

"The music and the parties and the paparazzi, I mean, it's like living in Lebanon now," Shepard claimed during an appearance on "The View" (Lebanon — are we missing something about you?).

Bell was more willing to cut the kid some slack. "In his defense, I will say we don't know the exact house the music is coming from," Bell admitted. "We just know since he moved in, the music has been blaring."

Guys, he's 18 and drives a $100,000 sports car — you're lucky it's not parked in your pool.

THE WORD

Metro's Monica Weymouth shares her take on the world of gossip @monicaatmetro monica.weymouth@metro.us

Pattinson packs up his bags

Not surprisingly, Robert Pattinson has packed up and left the Los Angeles home he shared with Kristen Stewart. This comes after Us Weekly published photos of his girlfriend and "Twilight" co-star in the midst of a not-so-discreet fling with director Rupert Sanders.

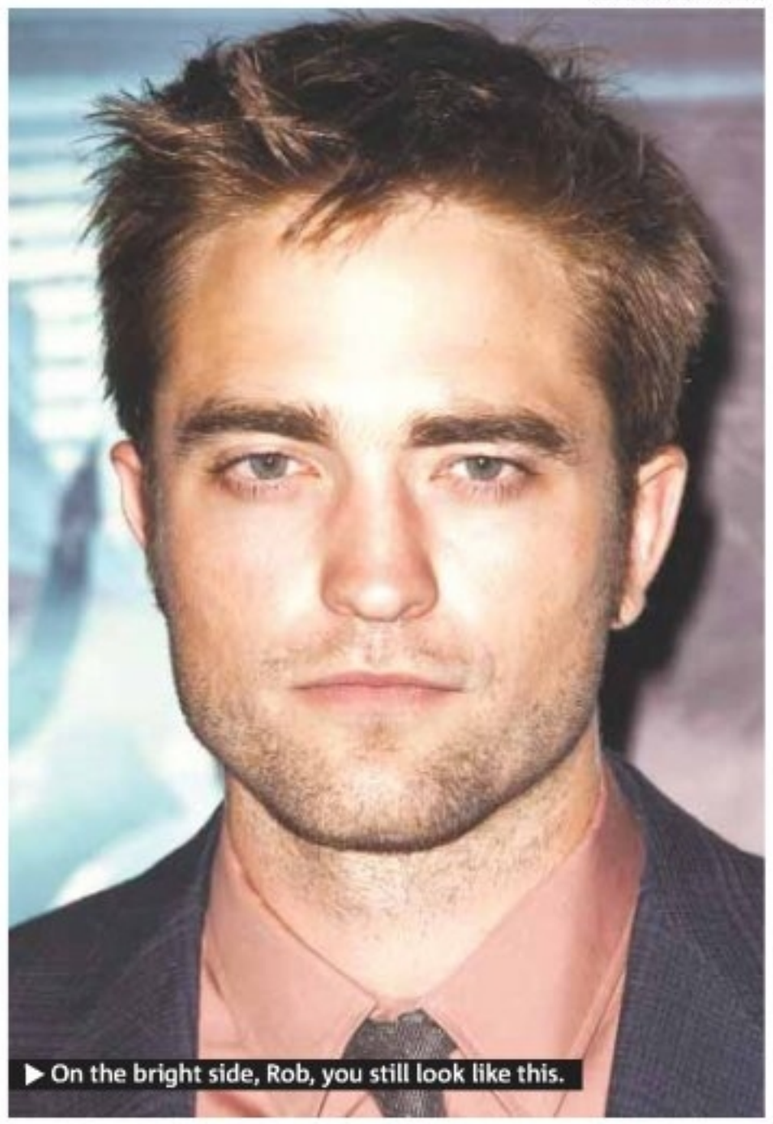
Although Stewart issued a weepy public appeal for forgiveness, it appears Pattinson isn't having it — maybe because, like Us Weekly, he noticed that the L.A. Dodgers hat she was wearing in the photos looks suspiciously similar to one he's frequently spotted in.

"I'm not sure they'll be able to recover from this," a source associated with "Twilight" tells People, adding that Pattinson isn't in contact with Stewart and "is heartbroken and angry."

Tell us, Source, how does Kristen feel? "Kristen really loves Rob more than anything. He's all that matters to her."

There's plenty more to come from this: Stewart is reportedly preparing to personally apologize to Sanders' wife, and the final "Twilight" circus doesn't hit theaters until November. In other words: If we have to feel like a sleazy "Cheaters" B-team crew, so do you — so try to sit back and enjoy the ride.

ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES



▶ On the bright side, Rob, you still look like this.

Kutcher is a serious something

We occasionally forget this, but Ashton Kutcher is an actor — and apparently, he takes it seriously sometimes. While shooting his new Steve Jobs biopic, Kutcher is reportedly insisting to stay in character between takes.

"I didn't understand when he started yelling at people. A PA had to explain to me that Ashton was insistent on staying in character at all times on set," a source tells RadarOnline. "I'm pretty sure this is a whole new way of acting for him, it's kind of bizarre. He's not been nice to people on set. He's been really mean to everyone, even when he's off camera."

Don't forget Ashton: Jobs was a brilliant inventor in addition to a cranky boss. We're expecting something shiny by the time you're done.

TV watch list

GEORGE BURNS

'Oprah's Lifeclass'

REALITY. In a special entitled "Growing Beyond Guilt," Oprah Winfrey returns to her Chicago studio not to admit regret in shuttering her talk show, but to inspire others to move on. Yes, even if their television networks aren't nearly as successful as they had hoped, either.
Sunday, 10 p.m., OWN

'Hillbilly Handfishin''

REALITY. Skipper Bivins and Trent Jackson roll up their sleeves for another season of noodling, aka catching catfish with their bare hands, aka we're still amazed this is a hit TV show, too.
Season premiere, Sunday 8 p.m., Animal Planet

'Bar Rescue'

REALITY. Piratz Tavern is up for an overhaul by "nightlife expert" Jon Taffer, who suggests that the idea of running a tavern for pirates may be why the establishment is tanking. Season premiere, Sunday, 9 p.m., Spike

Letters

letters@metro.us

Religious views have no place in public forum

Once again, thanks to Metro for posting narrow viewpoints from narrow-minded individuals in print. Joseph is no different than those preaching faith on the street corner. I find it offensive that the Metro posted this as a letter. News organizations are supposed to take a neutral standpoint. I understand that this may be his viewpoint, but in printing it you are alienating many. Faith is personal and should be a private matter.

PHIL HOWARD, VIA E-MAIL

Evil in killer shows the evil in us all

Many people have asked why James Holmes allegedly murdered while other people with similar personality and background have not done the same. A wise past observer noted, "For from within, out of people's hearts, come evil thoughts, sexual immorality, theft, murder, adultery, greed, malice, deceit" (Mark 7:21, 22). We don't like the "sinner" moniker, but if we label the shooter "evil" then we might have to admit that we are capable of the same. To solve a "problem," it helps to know what the problem is. Perhaps the above-quoted sage might offer a solution.

NORMUND STRAUTIN, VIA E-MAIL

Society needs to put end to violence

We have to look at things in perspective. If James Holmes, one of our best and brightest, could do what happened in Aurora — what does that say for our society? This incident is a terrifying example of the lack of support our kids have today and the easy access to weapons. Hollywood bears its share of blame. The violence they are feeding our 13-year-olds is a disgrace to humanity. Society must act as our Supreme Court fails to protect us.

MARSHA KENDALL, VIA E-MAIL

Second Amendment to oppose despots

The intent of the U.N. Small Arms Treaty is to prevent the American people from being able to protect themselves against a rogue government, like the present one and its predecessor, that seeks to enslave us to their bankster master's New World Order. This was and remains the purpose of the Second Amendment; not to insure hunters have guns, nor for home invasion protection from robbers — but that citizens have them to defend themselves from tyranny. Who would arm Americans against a despot, like we are arming the Syrian people against their despot?

CHARLES M. COUCH, VIA E-MAIL

What is the big deal about having a photo ID? I have carried one for years. In fact, I just had mine renewed. All I did was go into a Penn Dot office, they are all over the city — and no, I don't drive. They ask your date of birth, sex, color of your eyes and height.

They take your picture and that is it. Go get one and smile for the birdie.

VIRGINIA BENNETT, VIA- EMAIL

Horoscope

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. Taking some time to smell the roses would be a rewarding choice for you. Spend a few hours resting in a way that will benefit you both mentally and physically.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Victory will not be denied you if you are tenacious about finishing whatever you start. You'll find that you'll get stronger with each endeavor as the end draws closer.

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. You're a better than average negotiator, so don't hesitate to do some haggling if you are displeased with an arrangement that you have with another. The terms aren't carved in stone.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. If you know there are certain things that can be done that will help advance your financial health, by all means do them. It does no good to postpone action once again.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Do your own thing, because you'll perform best in situations where you have the freedom to act in an independent manner. If you must mingle with others, be a leader not a follower.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Something is going on behind the scenes that will end up benefiting you when it is fully disclosed. You might get your first inkling of it today.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. If at all possible, try to devote as much time as you can to a new endeavor that has recently captured your fancy. Chances are it will turn out lucky.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. Don't waste your time on goals of small significance. Instead, focus your efforts on an objective that could result in a major accomplishment once you put your mind to it.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. You might even surprise yourself as to how well you fare when you have total faith in what you want to accomplish. With this mind-set, don't squander your energy on small potatoes.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. Even if you aren't the one to initiate a wonderful opportunity to do something important with your friends, your participation in it will help make the endeavor a great success.

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. Free time won't be an issue for you, and that's as it should be. With a plate full of things that need tending, your only problem is which to do first.

Cheap tricks

▶ Adventuredrum

Did someone say free?

The University City District is hooking it up this summer with tons of entertainment on the cheap. Need a reason to cross the Schuylkill? Check out www.universitycity.org, and read on:

▶ 40th Street Summer Series: Adventuredrum
Aug. 25, 6 p.m.
Free, 40th and Walnut streets
This eclectic, percussion-heavy band is surprisingly danceable and headed up by Christopher Sean Powell of Man Man.

▶ Baltimore Avenue Dollar Stroll
Aug. 16, Baltimore Ave. between 50th and 43rd streets
The Dollar Stroll is one of West Philly's best kept secrets, right up there with Penn sunbathing and Avril 50. Restaurants offer $1 treats, from lentil wraps (Dahlak) to pancake balls (Maru Global) to craft brews (good looking out, Dock Street Brewery!).

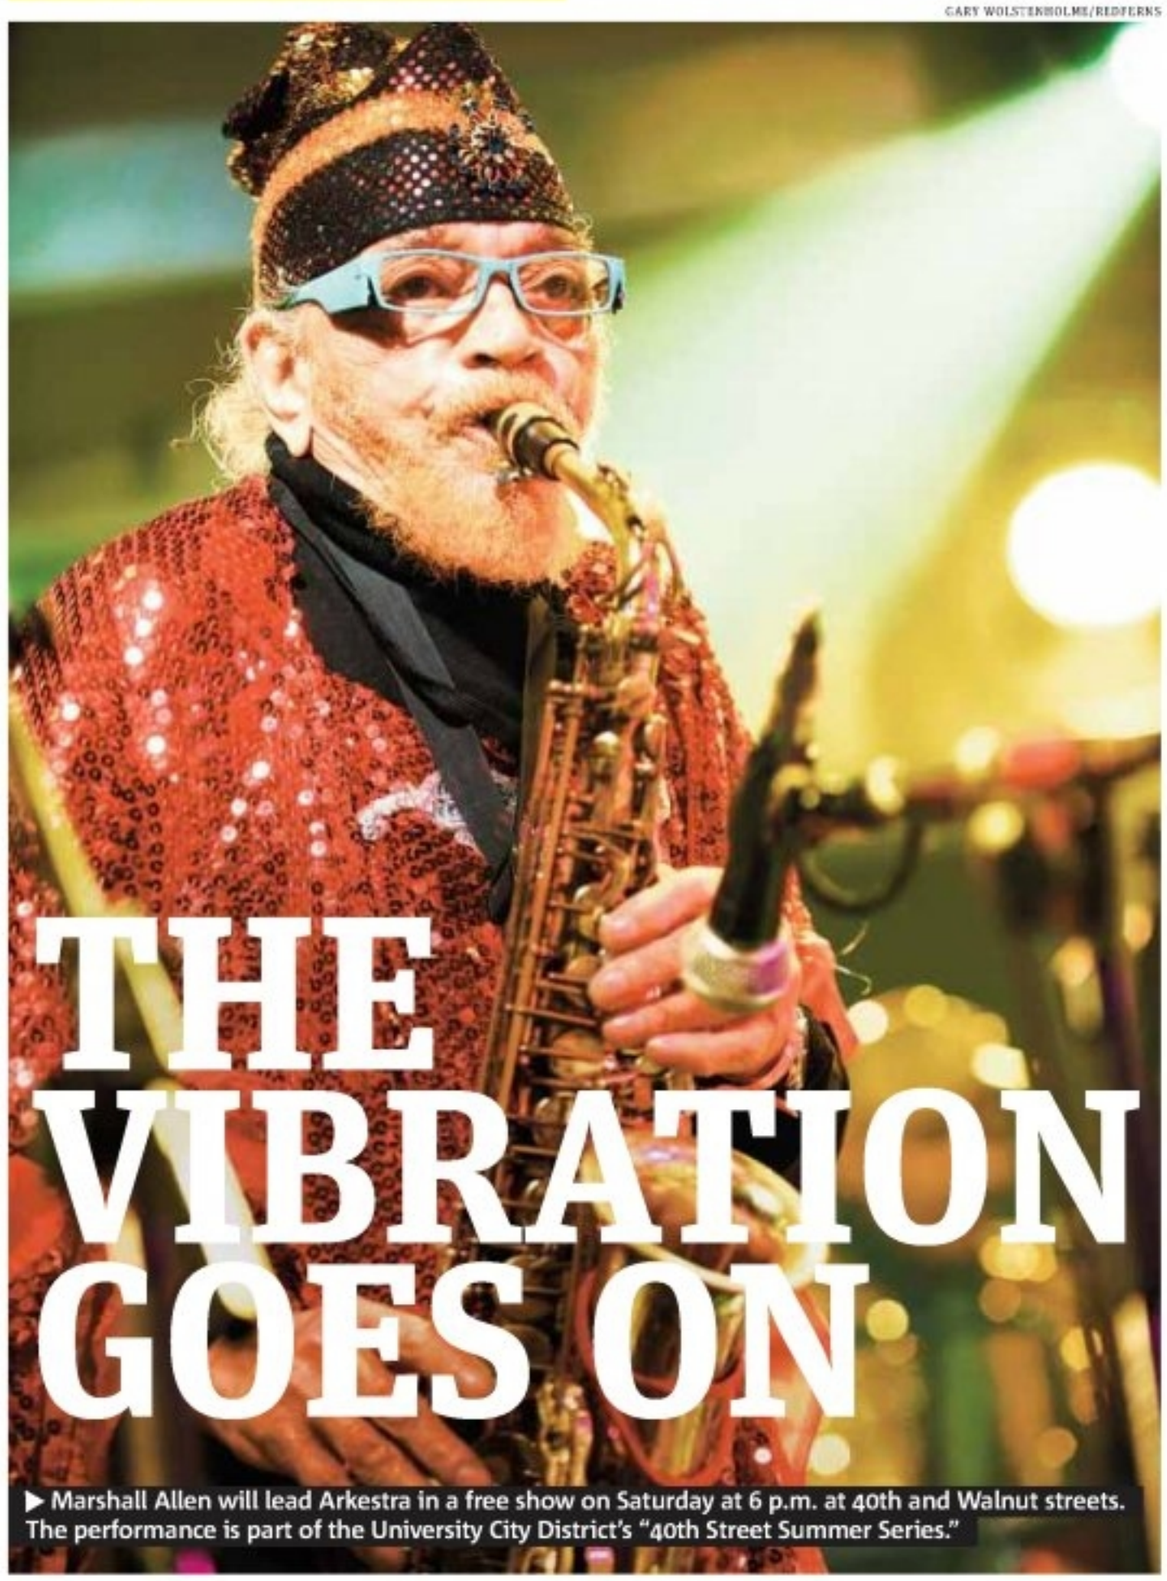
GARY WOLSTENHOLME/REDFERNS



THE VIBRATION GOES ON

▶ Marshall Allen will lead Arkestra in a free show on Saturday at 6 p.m. at 40th and Walnut streets. The performance is part of the University City District's "40th Street Summer Series."

Legendary Arkestra founder Sun Ra is no longer with us, but Marshall Allen has things covered

Sun Ra relocated his Arkestra to Philadelphia in 1968, and a Germantown house has been the headquarters for his boundary-shattering experimental jazz ensemble ever since. Following Sun Ra's 1993 "departure from the planet" — that's their phrase, and we dig it — multi-instrumentalist Marshall Allen became the leader of the Arkestra. On Saturday, with an opening performance by the electronic musician Oneohtrix Point Never, Allen leads the Arkestra for a free concert in University City. We spoke to Allen on the phone from the Sun Ra house.

At 88 years old, you show no signs of slowing down. What's the secret?
I do it for my well-being, and hopefully I can give everybody else some well-being, too. Music can make you happy or sad, it can heal you and improve your mental and physical state. I play because it keeps my spirit up. I make sound for a sound body and mind.

What's the most valuable lesson you learned from Sun Ra?
To play what I feel. He said each individual should make music their own way, for their own well-being. So I play the vibrations of the day. I feel different each day so I play differently. I don't say "I should've played this or should've played that," because everyday's a different vibration. When I was younger, I was a little more wild, but now I've calmed down and play different feelings.

How has the Arkestra evolved since Sun Ra left the planet?
There are always different musicians, and we try to never play the same way twice. Today we might be on the wild side, and then tomorrow we might play on the smooth side. The musicians have a lot of potential, and each of them brings something unique and expresses it in their own way.

Can you describe an Arkestra show for people who've never been to one?
There's gonna be about 14 of us onstage and we're gonna put on a crazy show. There will be a lot of movement — a lot of singing, a lot of dancing, a lot of vibrations.

Atlantic City Food and Wine Festival returns this weekend

This weekend marks the third annual gathering of chefs at the shore for the Atlantic City Food and Wine Festival. Paula Deen, Robert Irvine, Anne Burrell and other culinary bigwigs will host a series of events at area casinos, including all-you-can-eat crabs at Bally's and sunset sushi on the pool deck at Caesars. You can also stroll through a Grand Market featuring over 100 food and wine vendors, cooking demonstrations, tastings and the latest in kitchen gadgetry.

Andrew Zimmern, host of The Travel Channel's Bizarre Foods, will emcee Friday's cheesesteak tasting party at the Showboat. Zimmern, who remembers visiting a mostly desolate Atlantic City when he was a child, calls the present-day scene "vibrant." When asked if he'd consider New Jersey for a future episode, he rhapsodizes on the humble pork roll. "I've got a regular pipeline from the Pork Roll Express people in New Jersey who keep me well-stocked in Taylor ham."

Representing native talent this weekend is personal chef Nicole Gaffney, also known as The Dinner Belle (www.the-dinner-belle.com). Gaffney, who was born and raised in Egg Harbor Township, has witnessed the area's culinary evolution first hand.

"The local movement is really starting to catch on now. Lots of great restaurants in the area are taking full advantage of the farms and the great seafood that we have — I mean, New Jersey is the Garden State."

▶ The Dinner Belle will demo her Thai-style clams this Saturday at noon at the Atlantic City Food and Wine Festival's Grand Market.

"Lots of great restaurants in the area are taking full advantage of the farms and the great seafood that we have — I mean, New Jersey is the Garden State."
CHEF NICOLE GAFFNEY

Gaffney will be demonstrating a dish showcasing some of this local bounty, Thai-style clams with zucchini ribbon salad, at the Grand Market this Saturday at noon.

"We've got killer littleneck clams that come out of the bays here — and also the summer squash. I know it's going crazy in my garden right now."

Presidential order: Vick vows to slide for Obama

Eagles QB promises to go down on first run Hopes to convert Obama to Birds fan, visit the White House

When you get a direct order from the commander-in-chief, it's probably a good idea to heed it.

Mike Vick was relayed a message Thursday, via teammate Nnamdi Asomugha, from President Barack Obama that he should start sliding at the end of scrambles. Message received, over and out.

"I was stunned," Vick said. "I didn't believe it. It was awesome."

Vick has come under intense scrutiny for his inability (or maybe unwillingness) to simply go down in those situations to avoid injury. When he was playing in Atlanta, they even brought in a Braves player to teach him how to slide properly. Now, with a nudge from Obama, Vick appears humbled and willing.

"It was just one of those things that you hear that's just hard to believe," Vick said, "but at the same time when you let it all soak in, you think to yourself, 'Man, he's got a point.' If he's saying it, then I've got to do it. So the first run of the year, I'm sliding and you'll know it's for him."

Obama, a proud Chicago Bears fan, even mentioned that he was a "fan" of the Eagles quarterback. Vick's new goal is to try and switch the President's allegiance.

"We're going to try to convert him over to an Eagles fan, see if we can make him an Eagles fan by the end of the season," Vick said.

Of course, if the Eagles win the Super Bowl, Vick would have the opportunity to meet Obama face-to-face at the White House and shake his hand. Again, Vick seemed visibly humbled.

"It would be awesome," he said. "It would be a dream come true."

Young wing inks four-year contract with Orange and Black Could be teamed with Giroux next season Reports: Extension coming for coach

It was more of a ripple than a splash, but an important rippled nonetheless.

A day after the Flyers lost out on the Shea Weber sweepstakes, the team signed Jakub Voracek to a four-year deal worth a reported $17 million. The 22-year-old forward scored a career-high 18 goals while recording 49 points in 78 games last season for the Orange and Black. Voracek asserted his dominance in the postseason, with 10 points in 11 playoff games.

"We are happy to have Jake under contract and look forward to him being a big part of our future," said Flyers GM Paul Holmgren.

Holmgren also hinted that Voracek could see time on Claude Giroux's line next year. Voracek, a native of the Czech Republic, was acquired by the Flyers last summer as part of the deal that sent Jeff Carter to Columbus. Obviously, the organization has a lot of confidence in its rising star.

"I am happy we agree on the terms of the deal, and very happy to be locked up by the Flyers for the next four years," Voracek said. METRO

Report: Lavs deal in works

The Flyers are looking to extend head coach Peter Laviolette's contract, according to a report on CSNPhilly.com. The deal could be completed as soon as next week. His current contract expires at the end of the 2012-13 season.

The 47-year-old is one of the most respected coaches in the NHL. He led the Carolina Hurricanes to a Stanley Cup in 2006 and got to Game 6 of the Finals with the Flyers in 2010. He holds a record of 122-73-26 since taking the Flyers gig in December 2009. METRO

Sixers open 2012-13 season on Halloween

Trick or treat, Sixers fans.

The team will open the 2012-13 season on Oct. 31 at 7 p.m. against Denver. The Sixers are coming off their first winning campaign since 2004-05 after taking Boston to Game 7 of the Eastern Conference semifinals.

Among the highlights are home dates against Oklahoma City (Nov. 24), Boston (Dec. 7), L.A. Lakers (Dec. 16) and two games vs. Miami (Feb. 23, March 13). The Sixers get 10 of their first 15 at the Wells Fargo Center, the most in that span since 1988-89.

The Sixers also announced special plans in celebration of the franchise's 50th season in the City of Brotherly Love.

Big game

Sixers will offer a "Big Game" package including:

Oct. 31 vs. Denver, Nov. 24 vs. OKC, Dec. 7 vs. Boston, Dec. 16 vs. Lakers, Jan. 8 vs. Brooklyn, Jan. 26 vs. NY, Feb. 11 vs. Clippers, Feb. 23 vs. Miami, March 13 vs. Miami and March 16 vs. Indiana

The exact details will be announced at a later date. Season tickets and 10-game packages are available Friday at Sixers.com. Individual tickets go on sale in October. METRO
